Pupil Free Day – Professional Learning - Kaylene – Brightpath , NAPLAN writing, DIBELS

PUPIL FREE DAY – WHAT DID OUR TEACHERS DO?

On the day's list was to assess and moderate student writing. As part of our assessment cycle, students from reception to year 6 researched, practised note taking (identifying main ideas, synthesising information from a range of texts) and then used those notes to compose their own information report.

Teachers made on-balance judgements against a writing scale, taking into consideration:

- Was the writing clear in its purpose?
- Has the student included subject specific technical vocabulary?
- Is the writing factual and objective?
- Are their ideas logically organised?
- Has the student structured their text with classification, appearance, habitat, diet, life cycle, behaviour, adaptations etc. This will develop as students move through the years and mature as writers.
- Has the student used paragraphs, varied sentence structures, correct punctuation and spelling expected at their year level?

Teachers made notes on what students have done well and the next steps in their teaching and learning cycle.

Teachers moderate the student's writing to check for consistency of judgement.

WHAT ELSE DID TEACHERS DO?

Teachers analysed the 2023 NAPLAN writing data. What were the general trends? Identifying our year 3 and 5 students have improved in engaging their audience, demonstrating appropriate narrative text structure (beginning, complication and resolution), generating ideas, vocabulary, sentence structure and spelling but still need more work to develop character and setting, paragraphing and cohesion.

WHAT ELSE DID TEACHERS DO?

R-3 teachers worked on analysing their student's reading data from the DIBELS assessments this term. They looked at the big picture of each year level, who was making good progress and which students were still showing risk for reading difficulties. Classroom strategies and targeted support with the resources available was discussed and planned for. Teachers looked at the impact that regular absences have on reading development.

WHAT ELSE DID TEACHERS DO?

They went home to rest their brains ready for a busy week of teaching and learning and hoping their students are over their sugar rush from the Royal Adelaide Show!
